LEARN KHAROSHTHI

(From Videha विदेह www.videha.co.in Archive)

GAJENDRA THAKUR

Videha eJournal (link www.videha.co.in) is a multidisciplinary online journal dedicated to the promotion and preservation of the Maithili language, literature and culture. It is a platform for scholars, researchers, writers and poets to publish their works and share their knowledge about Maithili language, literature, and culture. The journal is published online to promote and preserve Maithili language and culture. The journal publishes articles, research papers, book reviews, and poetry in Maithili and English languages. It also features translations of literary works from other languages into Maithili. It is a peer-reviewed journal, which means that articles and papers are reviewed by experts in the field before they are accepted for publication.

Kharoshthi

Early writing in India is associated with three scripts; Indus (Harrapan), Brahmi and Kharoshthi. The Kharoshthi script descended from Aramaic and was used in what is now Northern Pakistan and Eastern Afghanistan during the 4th or 5th century BC. It was used for about 700 years for writing a group of vernacular middle Indo-Aryan dialects collectively termed 'Prakrit'. There has been some evidence that local variants of Kharoshthi writing were used for even longer than this along the Silk Route, but these too later died out without leaving any descendants. Notes

For general character mapping notes, please refer to Script Matrix .

The vowel-length indicator is a pretty late feature. Kharoshthi in its earlier stages did not have it. The Segoe UI Historic font in Windows 10 supports a greater range of ligatures than Noto Sans Kharoshthi. If you do not see various Kharoshthi ligatures, it is possibly because of the lack of Segoe Historic UI in your system and Noto Sans Kharoshthi is being used as the replacement web font.

Kharoshthi

Early writing in India is associated with three scripts; Indus (Harrapan), Brahmi and Kharoshthi. The Kharoshthi script descended from Aramaic and was used in what is now Northern Pakistan and Eastern Afghanistan during the 4th or 5th century BC. It was used for about 700 years for writing a group of vernacular middle Indo-Aryan dialects collectively termed 'Prakrit'. There has been some evidence that local variants of Kharoshthi writing were used for even longer than this along the Silk Route, but these too later died out without leaving any descendants. Kharoshthi

Early writing in India is associated with three scripts; Indus (Harrapan), Brahmi and Kharoshthi. The Kharoshthi script descended from Aramaic and was used in what is now Northern Pakistan and Eastern Afghanistan during the 4th or 5th century BC. It was used for about 700 years for writing a group of vernacular middle Indo-Aryan dialects collectively termed 'Prakrit'. There has been some evidence that local variants of Kharoshthi writing were used for even longer than this along the Silk Route, but these too later died out without leaving any descendants. (from ScriptSource). Also see Wikipedia and Omniglot
